El-Gendi is an associate at the firm with a focus on intellectual property and commercial litigation. He also has experience with real estate matters. His diverse education, in neurobiology with a minor in business management and legal jurisprudence, allows him to understand complex information quickly and streamline voluminous information into digestible, concise summations to effectively advocate on behalf of clients. El-Gendi treats every client’s matter with the same care he would take for his own personal matters. He works efficiently to get to the core of an issue by excising superfluous information while meticulously scrutinizing nuanced details.
El-Gendi’s litigation experience in both federal and state courts includes representing clients in the following types of disputes: patent invalidation, copyright, trademark, IP license, royalty agreement, lease agreement (local counsel), franchisor/franchisee, privacy, personal injury, international and out of state judgment domestication, fraud (concealment, misrepresentation, etc.), aviation, breach of fiduciary duty/civil theft, real property, limited liability company operations, probate and estate, and employment. El-Gendi has his undergraduate degree from Stony Brook University, State University of New York and his J.D. from Emory University.
